

The background of the slide features a faded, sepia-toned photograph of several Native American individuals, likely from the Plains or Southwest, dressed in traditional regalia including feathered headdresses and patterned robes. They are standing outdoors in a natural setting.

Montana State University

Exploring “Indian Education for All”

Implications for Higher Education

September 12, 2008

12:00 Lunch, Welcome, Q & A on Culturally Responsive Pedagogy

1:00 Why Indian Education for All?
How did we get here?
Let’s create a context through the readings and discussion.
What is this work really about?
A 21st century literacy.

1:45 Indian Education for All
Implications for Higher Education
Policies
Research
Faculty
Programs
Course Content
(Small Group Discussion)

2:15 Indian Education for All
Implications for the Faculty as Individuals
(Small Group Discussion)

2:30 Indian Education for All
Implications for Faculty in the Classroom
(Small Group Discussion)

3:00 Indian Education for All
Implications for Faculty as Members of the Institution
(Small Group Discussion)

3:30 Where do we go from here?